

Joint Russia-China Naval Drills

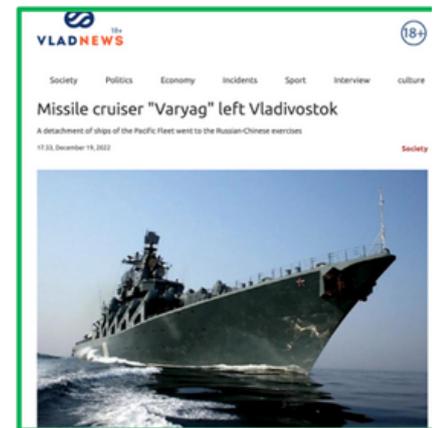

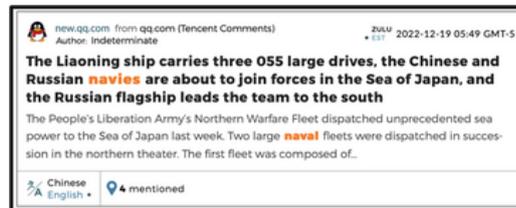

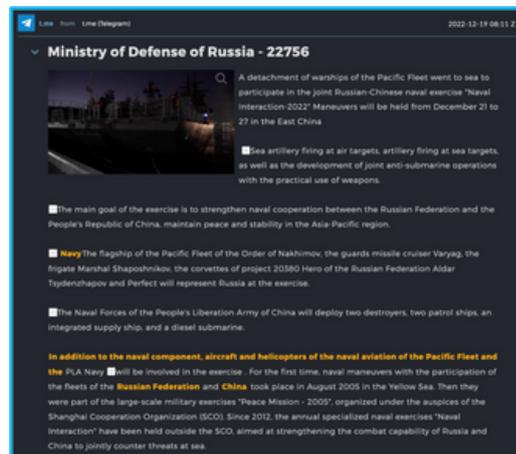

Open-Source Intelligence in Action

Background

- The Russian Ministry of Defense recently announced joint naval drills with China.
- This military activity took place 12/21/22–12/27/22 in the East China Sea.
- Activities included:
 - Rocket and artillery firing at both air and sea targets
 - Joint submarine work
- Multiple types of vessels were involved including destroyers, patrol ships, submarines, supply ships and naval aviation crafts.

Deeper Insight

Internal analysts, harnessing the power of publicly available information through Babel Street technology, uncovered a wide set of information around key cooperative military activity between China and Russia.

The Power of Publicly Available Information: Joint Russia-China Naval Drills

3+ Billion

Data sources across the digital landscape

200+ Million

Documents processed per day

24/7

Persistent, cross-lingual search is always on

1 second

Reveals the most insights that matter